FUELS OF FUTURE

- Sustainable Fuels for Carbon Neutral Growth -

09:00 AM – 13th January 2023 – Hotel Le-Meridien, New Delhi

BACKGROUND

Demand for future fuels has been driven by climate change concerns and energy security. Several alternative fuel options have been considered and developed, including biomass-based diesel, hydrogen & synthetic fuels but the increasing demand for energy is still rising. India's thrust towards clean mobility partly stems from its overall environmental commitments under the Paris climate agreement & COP27 to reduce greenhouse gases, transition quickly to clean energy, and contribute to the mitigation of the impacts of climate change. A substantial contribution to these goals is expected to come from alternately fuelled mobility.

The concern over rapid depletion of fossil fuels has prompted the search for alternative fuels which having efficiencies similar to those found in the conventional fuels which are being used today. The future consumption is based on alternative fuel resources and distribution infrastructure. India aims to achieve net-zero at the earliest and recognises the importance of transition to clean transport to achieve this target. Over the last few years, the Government has laid emphasis on the promotion of next generation industrial segments in the country to support this transition. The government had implemented the Ethanol Blended Petrol (EBP) Programme throughout the country, launched Green Hydrogen Policy, new Electric Vehicle Policy, these commitments are positioning India as a leading destination in alternate fuels in India.

However, due to insufficient financial stability of refineries, production is not meeting the demand and limited availability of feedstock, technology, infusion lack of skilled labour & awareness is still a concern for this Industry. To discuss the above related issues and to bring together major players in blending & alternative fuels on national level and to strategize on making India, self-reliant in energy sector, ASSOCHAM is organizing a Conference on "Fuels of Future-Sustainable fuel for Carbon Neutral Growth" on 13th January 2023 in Hotel Le-Meridien, New Delhi.
