OVERVIEW

The insurance industry plays a critical role in contributing to economic growth. The insurance industry has begun shifting to a consumer-centric model focusing on consumer experiences. Existing channels to communicate with customers for policy questions and claims have been enhanced along with hybrid offerings that include human and artificial intelligence for customer direct and agent-facing experiences.

Going fully digital has indeed helped insurance companies to drive growth amidst Covid-19. A few insurance companies were already ticking all the boxes in terms of digital transformation as we drive into the post-digital era by augmenting these services with AI/ML-based tools.

Globally many collaborations between Insurance & InsurTechs have brought technological innovation and agile execution, enabling insurers to counter legacy data systems and complex internal processes. Insurtechs have the opportunity to get access to a broader set of customers and participants, improve offerings and achieve faster scale up. There are multiple models for collaboration such as incubation, capital investment, co-creation, partnership / distribution, and integration.
